Potential Heat Impacts

None

Unlikely

Possible

Likely

Highly Likely

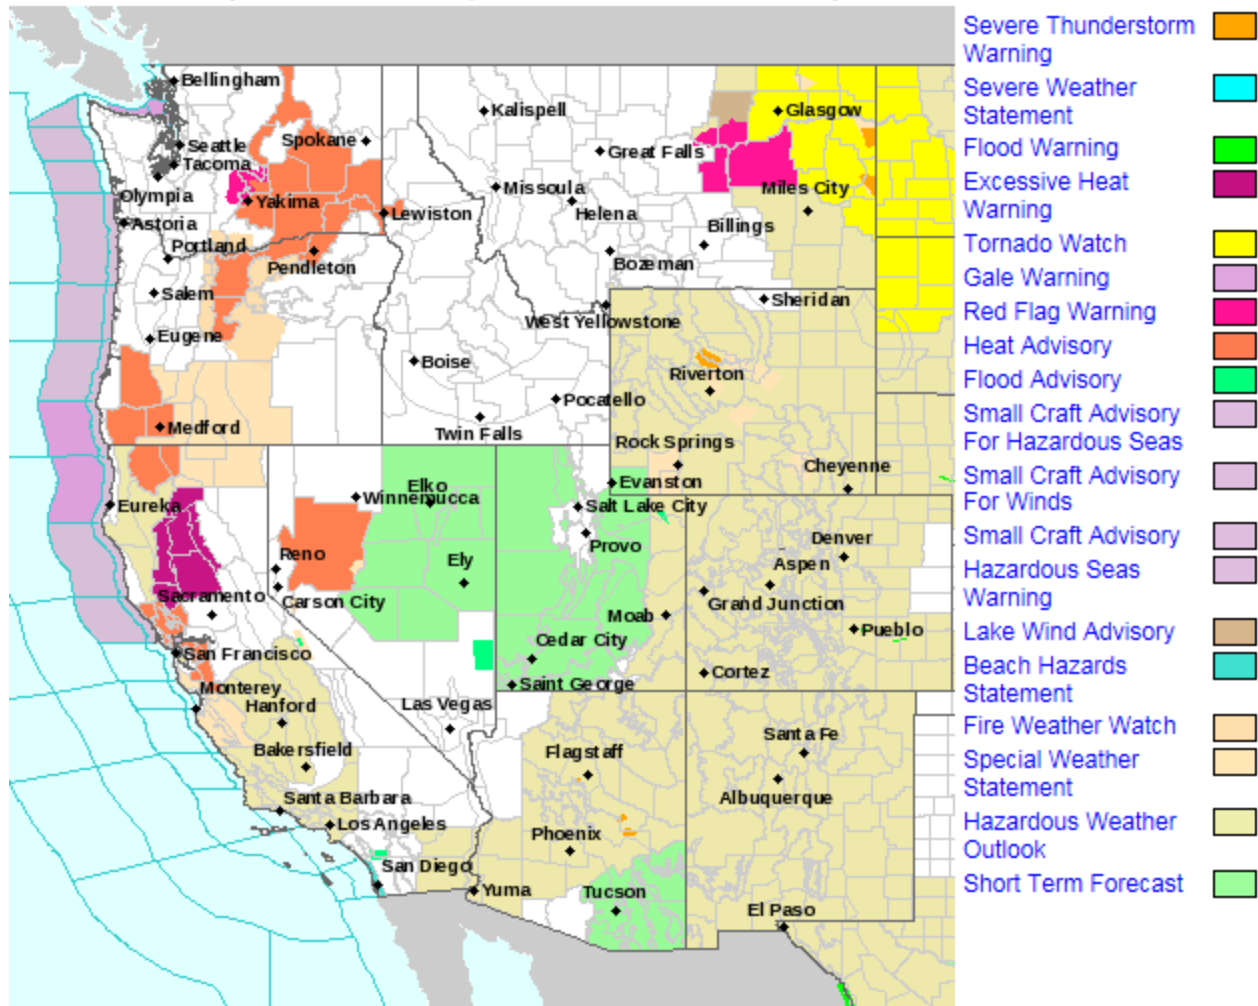

Northern Region

Weather will be getting hotter and drier with temperatures about 10-15 degrees above normal. Some subtropical moisture across the Sierra may trigger isolated thunderstorms near the Tahoe region both today and Wednesday. Then on Thursday, a deeper area of subtropical moisture returns from the southeast, according to the latest computer models. Confidence is a bit lower on timing and location of this next round of lightning middle to end of next week. However, with a few days of hot/dry weather preceding that event, we've issued HIGH RISK for the most likely areas near the Sierra and adjacent Eastside. Will wait to see if that area needs to be expanded (or retracted).

Southern Region

A dominating ridge of high pressure over the Great Basin will produce hot, humid conditions with isolated mountain storms through the end of the week. Southeasterly flow around this high is steering moisture into the area, and as a result, minimum relative humidity readings will continue to range from 15-20% over many areas through Friday. Yesterday, about 160 lightning strikes were recorded over the area, mainly across the western Inyo National Forest. Convection today and Wednesday will be confined mostly to the Sierras, but one or two storms may occur across the Kern County Mountains and across the mountains along the eastern flank of Monterey and San Luis Obispo Counties. Temperatures through the end of the week will be 10-15 degrees above normal with highs in the 80s along the coast and in the mountains, 100-105 in the valleys and up to 115 in the low deserts. Winds will be light. Friday and Saturday, slightly drier air will work into the area, resulting in a bit less thunderstorm activity. A return of onshore flow will lead to a slow cooling trend Sunday into the first half of next week. Thunderstorms will continue in the Sierras, but the rest of the area should see more afternoon sunshine with no additional showers or thunderstorms for Sunday into the first half of next week.

Hoop Valley Tribe Water Shortage

- On 06/27/15 at 1325 hours the California State Warning Center was advised by the Cal OES Tribal Liaison Duty Officer (TLDO) that the Hoopa Valley Tribe, Humboldt County, was requesting a 2-3 day supply of bottled drinking water for approximately 150 people. The request was increased to a confirmed final total of 300 individuals for 3 days.
- A conference call was held between Cal OES, Humboldt County, the Hoopa Valley Tribe, and several other Agencies / Stakeholders including FEMA, State Water Resource Control Board on 06/29/15 at 1300 hours. Notes from the conference call were forwarded to all parties on the call including the Hoopa Valley Tribe.
- Water treatment plant is currently working off of their back up system and is producing at half normal capacity. It has been discovered that a thick, black substance has been growing on the filters of the water treatment plant. As a result, the plant has to be turned off to clean the skid filter. Indian Health Service (IHS) has attributed this to warming river water causing water plants and algae to grow at an accelerated rate.
- Eric Lamoureux, Cal OES Inland Regional Administrator and Denise Shemenski, TLDO, have reached out to Nestlé who advised that they have agreed to donate and deliver a truck load of 22 pallets of water to the Tribe. Delivery logistics are being coordinated with the TLDO with local road weight and trailer length limits being primary obstacles at this time.
- The Tribe and all associated stakeholders are researching all funding options available to mitigate future water needs to include mutual aid agreements and local agreements between the County and Tribe.
- State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) stated that there is funding for tribal governments which can be used for bottled water. Possible funding available for testing water and a pump. Department of Water Resources (DWR) reports that they can provide water testing strips.
- The SOC will continue researching availability of water hauler trucks for the Tribe.
- Last night, 06/30/15, the Cal OES Recovery Assistant Director spoke with Caltrans to facilitate the delivery of a large water donation from Nestle Bottling Company (20 pallets). Additionally, the Assistant Director spoke with the Department of Water Resources who is able to send an engineer out of their Eureka Office to assist the tribe with their water treatment facility.
- Last night, 06/30/15, the Cal OES Tribal Advisor spoke with the Bureau of Indian Affairs to request that they coordinate with the USFS regarding any assistance they can provide the tribe in regard to fire suppression and water tender availability.
